

These Final Hours Button Activity

During WWII civilians on the home front tried to help the war effort in many different ways. The most well know was rationing but you could also participate by purchasing War Bonds. By purchasing one of these bonds civilians could help lighten the debt load of the United States government during the war. During WWII over $185 billion worth of war bonds were sold which would be the equivalent of over $3 Trillion in 2025. You could purchase war bonds from banks, post offices and places like the Young Men's Christian Association (Y.M.C.A). Color the button above to show your support for the soldiers over seas!